PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF CHASE.

The graces of personal life he had ascended with an equal step, and composed front, and stature rising with the prospect. He indulged in no tricks of surprise nor sensation.

His life contains no catch-phrases. His illustrations were seldom apt to nestle awhile in the ear, and, quiz themselves to satisfy there; but they took the proportions of mind and rose a little short of poesy. The forces which raised him never made him their instrument for subsequent ends, and hence there is a consistency in his life which will give him no uncertain portrait. Like Mr. Sumner and Mr. Trumbull, he possessed personal character sufficient to some unknown combinations in politics, and the influence with which fellow men may tax the name of contemporary statesmen. He was a preacher of the gospel of justice, mercy, and righteousness, as truly as his uncle, Bishop Chase, had ordained him; and inasmuch as the material of which to make his monument, for there is a rage for statesmen's behoof in him. That he wished to be president, was no offence against order, morals, or example. The mother's law to her child, the right of human usefulness she points out, is the American Chief Magistracy, honorably secured and attained. No less still the fame and the manly affairs; for none can look toward it from any of the meaner classes and creeds of career. Chase was suspected of desiring it because he was fit for it. His qualifications were his accusation.

HIS CARRIAGE AND MODE.

He was a man of finer nature than has been seen in Washington politics in the present period. His nature was wholly republican, but it was the republicanism of good manners, which raised the surrounding eye without depressing the spirits of any. To be his guest was to feel a higher respect for oneself. He did not labor upon his private auditors, and was not brilliant in speech or reminiscence, but he had a faculty of humor, quiet and twinkling, and a breadth of nature which began impressively and grew by acquaintance. The great art of encouragement, by which, as generous men grow older, they stand like entrenched, embattled ground with younger men, Mr. Chase possessed almost to a fault. He was of use to others more than they could return it. The great fortunes made by the patronage of the treasury stood aloof, fearful of being associated in honor amongst its items; and there was a time when some who had derived income and opportunity from his judicial fleetness hastened to declare for the regular ticket in advance, lest their obligation might be to their prejudice. These Governor Chase accepted as Aristides when he wrote his own sentence of banishment upon the voter's shell. But familiarity we knew how to arrest, and he could reunite with a look that was Washingtonian.

RELATION TO PARTIES.

In his moral relations to politics, society, and the bar, he was aristocratic, but submissive and reciprocal. His origin was good, but dependent; yet he never felt the dread of dependence, but, with New Hampshire ruggedness, made his way quickly from college to school teaching, and, in the vestry-room of the law, waiting for clients, became an honor in the law. When his profession developing and made him a citizen held in neighborly esteem, he carried himself upon the highest ground of human usefulness, and became an interpreter of the law in the interests of humanity. He did not drift with the tide to easy honors, but became choice spirits and the awakening conscience of the country, irrespective of party lines. He never aspired to be the creature of any party, and made no profession of party loyalty at any time. The organization which won Chase the most to free soil and progress suited best with, and at least four parties have paid its talents and ideas the meed of support. Can whom were so many idioms ever bestowed by public parties? He was not only in the right with two or three, as he might with two or three. The Presidency might have been his at the hands of the democracy, in 1852. Had he seen the banks of Missouri's elegance, he never would have made his legacy-speech occasion.

HOME AND FAMILY.

The residence of the Chief Justice was at every season at one country seat on the banks of Rock Creek, about three miles north of the city of Washington,—a roomy, oblong, plain-built dwelling, painted pea-green, and surrounded by deep heights and woodlands. A crowd once there a week ago, and found a quietness prevailing which should be heard by young people in their midway spring. Near a barn, a tow team was pitched in the woods, and the usual accompaniments of wet cows, horses and cackling fowls. A short distance from the house, a cluster of negro cottages series were assembled on the road, in one of which was the tomb of the late Amos Kendall. Here Chief Justice Chase has passed a year of rest and recuperation, work, companionship, and countless apprehensions of the short remaining days. There is a turn in the strength of men of affairs which takes them unawares and lasts a day. He was warned about three years ago that his time was short, and, since that night, a stroke of paralysis, his hair has fallen out, his face grown ashy and thicker, and his eyes have grown dimmer and of coarser light. A sturdy man he used to be, with a good, armer-like carriage, and the portraits on the green-cases of his students bear large, coherent expression, and perfect arms, and resolute and imposing little resemblance the truest figure of a man on the bench, wearing out the hours of duty there, listening to close arguments, and going home to labor on tasks which must meet the criticism of the country.

FORTUNES AND NAMES.

His worldly fortunes have been goodly, but no great. His daughters were happily married, and have now secured his bounty, and they have given him the wealth of their pride and affection. Perhaps the prize of higher honors was no less cessation of their cares. Both of these ladies inherit their father's mental disposition. Mrs. Sprague has probably been the most perfect party in Washington,—naive, elegant, engaging, and spirited. And Mrs. Hoyt, with less of the air of introduction, has been not less dear to her father, and of more definite accomplishments. Several grandchildren will preserve the blood of the Chief Justice; and his memory amongst jurists will be equal to that of any on the Supreme Bench. Courage, reconsideration, compass, original views, clearness and grace of argument, and a lover in the law in all its departments, as critic, compiler, law-giver, and expounder; these were his characteristics in the main, and he will not anticipate need be called to discover him. As Theodore Parker said, twenty years ago: "In the greatest question of the age, the question of Human Rights, as champions for mankind, there will appear Adams, Giddings, Chase, Parley, Mann, Hale, Seward, Rantoul, and Sumner." To this it may be added that, when the question of Human Rights was done, Mr. Chase was one of the first and few who believed that reconciliation and magnanimity were better than the more stiffening up of parties on old issues and antagonism,—better than the commencement of thunder which we have permitted in the South, and are in the reflections in the Northern States.—Cath in Chicago Tribune.

WEARING A NEW BOOT.

The Danbury News says: "It is a little singular how we boys can be made to do it at the store. You may not be able to get your boot only part way down the leg at the first trial but that is because your stocking is sweaty, or you haven't started right, and the shoemaker suggests that you start again after standing up to it, and he throws in a little powder from a pepper-box to aid you. And so you stand up, and pound down your boot, and part try yourself up, and your eyes stick out in an unpleasant manner, and every vein in your body appears to be on the point of bursting, and all the while that dealer stands around and eyes the operation as intently as if the whole affair was perfectly new and home to him. When your boot has finally struck bottom there is a faint impression on your mind that you have squeezed into an open stove, but he removes it by solemnly observing that he never saw a boot fit quite as good as that. You may suggest that your toe presses too hard against the front, or that some of the bones in the side of the foot are too much smashed, but he says this is always the way with a new boot, and that the trouble will entirely disappear in a few days. Then you take the other pair under your arm and start for home as animated as a ratio of 1812, all the while feeling that the world will not look bright and happy to you again until you have trained that shoemaker. You limp down town the next day, and smile at the wife with your mouth, while your eyes look as if you were waiting over an oyster bed barefoot. When no one is looking you kick against a nest or some other obstruction, and show a fondness for stopping and resting against something, but will sustain your weight. When you get home at night you go for those old boots with an eagerness that cannot be described, and the remarks that you make upon learning that your wife has disposed of them to a widow woman in the suburbs are calculated to immediately depopulate the earth of women and shoemakers generally.

General Canby was much above the ordinary stature—considerably over six feet in height. His address was reserved, which was, however, in a great measure due to a natural reticence. He seldom wore his uniform, and was averse to display. He had, so far as could be seen, no business relations with anybody about him looking to the improvement of his private fortune; but he was very prudent, husbanded his pay, and was regular in his habits. His house, presided over by a sister-in-law, estimable lady, was always open to visitors. It may not be inappropriate here to say that in his labors for the restoration of good feeling and prosperity in the Carolinas he had occasions and evidence to observe in Mrs. Canby, a most accomplished wife—a gentle-mannered, prayerful, womanly woman, who endeared herself to all with whom she associated. She spent much of her time and means in going about doing good. The needy and sorrowing women of Charleston should ever remember her with gratitude, as one of a few times ready to listen sincerely to the cries and cries of the suffering, whose causes, if they seemed deserving, were brought to the notice of her husband, for relief.

O. A. Holmes, in the Atlantic, writes as follows: "I know of nothing in the world sweeter than the shy, half-frightened young girl as a young man who sees only it is true that these dear creatures are a compassion for every kind of human woe, and anxious to alleviate all human misfortunes. They will go to Sunday-schools, though storms threaten, and tears are a rain, to teach the most unpleasant and unpractical classes of little children the age of themselves, and the dimensions of Og, King of Bashan's bedstead. They will stand behind a table at a fair all day, until they are ready to drop, dressed in their prettiest clothes and sweetest smiles, and try to make you buy what you do not want, at prices you cannot afford; and this as well as they can if they were no more to them as well as you. Such is their love for all good objects, and their eagerness to sympathize with all the suffering, poor creatures! But there is one thing they pay as they pay a lone young man.

A Mexican, examining some specimens of foreign art in a museum, said, "Ah, in the course of its performance rather grand exhibition. Now, can any of you boys name to mean animal of the species Equidæ—that is, one that looks like a horse?" A boy at once answered with a look of triumph, "Yes, sir, it is the animal that has four grandmothers."

SCRAPS.

A sarcastic lady says the only thing which seems to excite her dear husband's admiration is a piece of chalk.

Leavenworth has a gentleman thirty-two years old, and his voice is as exhilarating as ever.

The weather is getting warm enough to permit quite a few persons to can over the fence and talk about people across the way.

Nothing is more dangerous than an impudent friend; a letter is it to deal with a prudent enemy.—La Fontaine.

Some sewer seeds, such as portulacca, petunia, etc., may be sown on the surface, pressed in, and then watered with a fine rose.

A gentleman is said to have left a can of water by mistake at a customer's house, and the customer never discovered the error.

An Illinois man is willing to swear promptly to a counterfeit bill, looking at each other, taking no notice of each other's names, and that kind of thing.

"Jane, are you growing taller and fatter as you grow old?" "No, my child; why do you ask?" "Because you look as your head is going up through your hair."

A Wesleyan Chinaman, Dr. Morrison recently caught two white rats. Their hair was white as the whitest snow, and very soft and fine; the eyes, ears, and feet, pink.

Governor Woodson, of Missouri, has pardoned a convict with consumption that he becomes intoxicated by the use of strong drink while he remained in prison.

It is about time the little girl who turns the rose-bushes without stooping, to the delight of her parents and the undertaker, made her appearance.

Cincinnati has been a long time about it, but now it thinks it has started a movement that will rest in the organization of a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Fifteen years ago it was hard to sell a moose meat in Maine cities at five cents a pound; now it is rare to get it at any price, so waste it has been of late slaughter.

Elephants never sue for divorce. When a husband gets obstreperous, he takes his wife to the prize ring to thrash the gorgeous fist, and over she goes.

The latest advertising invention is a toothpick that picks your front teeth at once. According at vantage of it according to the inventor, is that it can also be used as a comb.

A Syracuse paper has received a poem on the loss of the "Atlantic," but is afraid to publish it, as some of the survivors, seeing it, might be worse than they did at the time of the tragedy.

"You young rascal," said an old gentleman to a rash little boy in the street, "if that cart had run over you, where would you have been now?" And the boy answered, "Why, behind a team of his number!"

The awkwardness of China is indicated strikingly by the simple fact, that, although she covers 600,000 square miles, she raises no coal, and though she has an inexhaustible supply of iron ore, she smelts very little.

Artists, sculptors, and painters, and our material is our own best, and poor, and bones. Any roughness begins at once to refine man's features by a meanness or sensuality to inscribe them.

Ten sheets of common to the mothers of ten families in the months of April and May, as they need it, will return double if not three times its value when both progeny and fleece are sent to market.

Horace Greeley once said that the great trouble with many people, the one thing that prevented their getting on in life, was that they wanted to get a dollar without honestly earning it.

A Rhode Island paper contains the information that the people of Riverton got three of their female school committees in one year's time, and last week elected a new board composed wholly of men.

There has been a great mortality this spring among the old people in London, where seventy persons upwards of eighty years of age recently died in a single week. The oldest was a widow of 103 winters.

Fort Scott, Kansas, is to have a castor of scenery, and the corners of the youth in that locality have already begun to droop. Mr. Newhew is the ingenious gentleman who proposes to go to this lucrative and lucrative business.

"You say," said a judge to a witness, "that the plaintiff resorted to an ingenious use of circumstantial evidence: state us exactly what you mean by that?" "Well," said the witness, my exact meaning is that he lied."

A lady called on a witty friend, who was not at home, and finding the piano dusty, wrote upon it, "Sarah." The next day they met, and the lady said, "I called on you yesterday." "Yes, I saw your record on the piano."

"I am ma, don't forget to ask papa about going to Brighton for a fortnight!" "Just, dear! I'm afraid it won't do! You know how preaching the seaside does papa for the first week always!" "Yes; but papa needn't come down the second week, you know!"

I pray you very solemnly to put that idea of snow-ogical things in heaven and earth out of your heads. It is very little that we can ever know, either of the ways of Providence or of the laws of existence. But what little is enough and exactly enough.—Ruskin.

Every one in the week is the Sabbath of some nation. Sunday is observed by the Christians, Monday by the Greeks, Tuesday by the Persians, Wednesday by the Assyrians, Thursday by the Egyptians, Friday by the Turks, Saturday by the Jews.

"Sacry, what's you selle?" said a gentleman to an essence grinder, anxious to discover what he was grinding. "Sure, yer honor, I'm only selling me own perfume." "What's that, Pat?" he inquired. "Why, sir, I buy her a pair of yearly rent, and I believes 'a' she never pay her."

A young lady of this city was recently struck with the uselessness of her life, and immediately went to work to learn plain sewing. At last accounts she had hemmed one side of a towel, which is considered quite a creditable piece of work for a beginner.—N. Y. Mail.

A man was recently chased down a street by a crowd of women dressed as near as possible as he was himself in his usual church, in order to ascertain which one of them he was afraid of. Of course, one kind of dress naturally occurred to others as the most commendable. How much better it would have been if the latter of consideration alone, if there were as many eyes of charities as there are sexes and dresses.

Sawyer says the only time he ever felt like a real estate owner, was when he had the neuralgia, and then he had over a dozen aches in his mouth.

INTERLUDES IN LIFE.—Let music and other elegant accomplishments take their proper ranks: they are pleasant as interludes in the great drama of life's duties.

A quilt-finding correspondent writes us, among other things: "In your paper of last week is a joke, the point of which I cannot see." And no wonder. There was no point to it. We had to print a good many jokes last week, and couldn't get points enough to go round.

Mrs. Stanton has a nice way of meeting all objections to the woman movement. Here is an instance, taken from one of her recent letters: "The best interests of men and women are so essentially the same, that when we come to the tug of war the men of our household will be ready to do our fighting."

Among the papers left by Judge Chase in the hands of his biographer are his diaries which he kept with much regularity during the greater portion of his life. It is known that he was in the habit of noting among other things, the discussions in President Lincoln's cabinet of prominent topics while he was a member of it. It is believed that his biographer will give portions of these sketches in the life of Chase.

There is a wide diversity of opinion as to infanticide, but a Maine child has demonstrated, to the Doctor and the herbiverous nurse that green carbs cannot be judiciously classed among the articles tending to strengthen the unmanageable egos of boyhood. The Maine infant soaked the carbs in milk, swallowed a portion of it, and, of course, came near dying. If parents will leave pretty poisonous things around plants will experiment with them.

A traveler tells the Boonpeat Star that the whole country along the Northern Pacific line in Dakota, is swarming with ducks, geese, curlews, swans, antelope, and other game, and that the birds are so numerous that the telegraph line is marked by the bodies of those killed by flying against the wire. He saw an Indian, he said, with a cartload of geese he had captured as they were stunned by flying against the wire. A lie of which, being a traveler's yarn, may be strictly true.

Few housekeepers appreciate the value of chicken and turkey wings; they use them to dust furniture and brush up the hearth, but for washing windows they are of unique worth. There is nothing that equals them; they clean the corners out easily, and leave no lint upon the glass. Much for spreading paste on walls and paper there is no invention that will do the work half as well. Try them once, and there will be no necessity of telling people to be sure and save all the wings.

At a meeting of Free Thinkers in Brussels, Belgium, lately, a prominent speaker declared that, "The conquest of woman is the matter to which we must now give our utmost attention, for when we once have the women in our hands, then the last refuge of Christianity is destroyed forever. For it is woman who keeps the men in church, by her influence and her many, a man would die as he has lived, a free-thinker, were it not for his wife. Therefore, we must move all our energies to gain the women and children."

We once asked a juvenile table in a police court, how it came into that years, and learned that he had become enamored of a table's life through reading a book entitled "The House of the Nine," a book written and published expressly for Sunday-schools, and intended to teach a lesson of honesty. An examination of the work to the story convinced us that it could hardly fail to produce in many children precisely the result which it had wrought in the life of this one.—Hearth and Home.

The Hartford horse-cars in the winter present such a ridiculous appearance with their canvas covers, that once were white but now are of an indefinable color, that the dog owning clique seems very natural.—Passenger who wants to get aboard: "Noah, stop your ark." Noah probably feels a little indignant and did not stop. Again he hailed: "Noah, stop your ark." Finally Noah cried out in the answer: "Come, hurry up—the animals are all in except the jackass."

A man who had too many racoons to an acre on his farm, bought from a neighbor a dog which, he was assured, was "first rate on coons." Taking the dog out for a hunt, his new owner soon found that the cur, so far from being given to charging furiously upon racoons, used to turn tail and flee howling away the moment he caught sight of one. When the man took the dog back to his former master, and asked that shameless what excuse he had for having thus deceived him. "I knew the beast wasn't good for anything else," was the reply, "and, of course, I thought he must be good upon 'coon.' So it is with many young men and women who are no good for anything else, and who imagine, therefore, that they must be "good upon literature."

An industrious physiologist makes some curious statements regarding the character and quantity of the articles we eat. Milk poured into tea instantly unites with the tannin of the tea and forms leather, or minute flakes of that compound. In the course of a year, therefore, a tea-drinker of moderate habits will imbibe enough leather to make a pair of shoes. We carry iron enough in our blood to make a horse shoe. We have clay enough to make a dozen good-sized bricks. We eat, not the traditional peck of dirt in a lifetime, but a peck a month; some of us more. The man who fills a glass of lager beer into his stomach has begun the manufacture of hats, the beer assimilating with the clay and forming a felt the same as seen in hat factories. The bones of every adult person require feeding with lime enough to make a marble mantel every eight months. To sum up: the man who lives three score and ten years requires the following aggregate of articles to keep him going:

70 pairs of men's shoes.
840 horse shoes.
120 bricks.
920 hats.
105 mantels.

The dirt is not counted; but it will be seen that a hearty man of an average sparing-house swallows enough real estate in a lifetime to make something handsome, if it could be divided and sold in corner lots at the ruling price.

The deposition of the Mayor of Strasbourg by the German authorities for alleged disloyal sentiments, came very near producing a marriage. A young lady of the place was engaged to a gentleman at Nancy, and the wedding was to come off in eight days. A few days before the ceremony, the bridegroom, greatly excited, received a telegram from a friend, informing him that unless he came over immediately a German magistrate would have arrested him. The bridegroom hastened at once to Strasbourg, and was married just a day or two before the authorities were announced for two months. Invitations were then sent to be made again under auspices by a German officer.

Following the examp e of our eating mete chants, we have ecided to put our business on a strict cash basis.

From the presen date, a l wars done in our office must be paid for on de ivery.

All advertisements chargeed in for publication in the paper must be accompanied by cash, excepting in the case o advertisements ordered for a conside e e number o insertions, the accounts for which will be presented on the firs of each month.

We intend to make no deviation from the above arrangements, and trust that those who favor us with their patronage will no (either directly or indirectly) ask us to do so.

We have a considera e number o outstanding accounts, which will be pa ed or immediately. Those knowing themselves indebted to us will be pre-pared, we hope, to meet the demands of the collector, as we must get our books balanced.

Mr. N. C. Meeker, who is now making an Eastern visit, writes to his paper, the Greeley Tribune—from Philade phia with reference to the presen opinion of intelligent people in the East in regard to Colorado. He says:

There are three genera ideas which are well defined in the minds of the best informed, and which are swearing in the minds of the genera public. First, it is believed that the minera wealth of Colorado is prospective y immense, but at present not large. Second, that the mountain scenery is grand, and on the whole superior to that of California, for the reason that you alone have the Rocky Mountains. Third, that Colorado is the most beautiful region in America, and if any person is in a low state of health, he will be almost certain to be benefitted by going to Colorado. This is the main and pre vailing idea. That Colorado has any especial advantages in regard to agriculture, or that much, if anything, can be grown, from the soil, is little considered, and this proba y for the reason that the higher class, which is leading in the opinion, has but little realization in such matters. I will give a few instances of the reputation that Colorado has for health ness. Chief Justice Chase, recent y deceased, had been in poor health for some time, and just before his death he was making arrangements for going to Colorado, and, if his life had been spared, he would undoubted y have gone. Judge Thomson, President of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, who is somewhat aged and infirm, said at once that he wanted to go to Colorado this summer. Henry Carey, the great Free Trade antagonist, and who is as fine a looking old gentleman as one will see among all kinds of men, said almost the same thing. Judge Kelley said he must certain y go out this summer. Scores almost equa y prominent also want to go, and the same is to be said of several distinguished ladies. From this brief statement the people of Colorado may be certain that our country is going to be a most wonderful resort for health seekers—in short, that Colorado is to become the great sanitarium of the United States.

In a this, there is instruction for us. Mr. Meeker says: "The Roe s at Manitou and Colorado Springs have already a reputation ous e of Colorado." So far, well. But we must go on in our efforts to build up a reputation for this point. If Colorado is to be the grand sanitarium of the United States, it must be our determination that here shall be the grand point of attraction in Colorado. As we have said before, Nature has surrounded us with abundant scenes of attraction and interest, and it remains for us to do is to promote, in every possible way, the comfort and the pleasure of those who come to enjoy these natural beauties. If we do this, there will scarcely be a tourist come into the Territory who will not, first or a , come to Colorado Springs, wherever else he may go afterwards.

Many little things might be done at comparatively small expense. The provision of a few seats, for instance, at convenient points in the Town, as Manitou, in Glen Eyrie, and the Garden of the Gods, and Cheyenne Cañon, would be a great boon, and not cost very much. A couple of fountains down in the "Experimental Garden," with rocks and mosses and ferns around them, could be put in with but great expense. And so on.

We shall be glad, as we have previously stated, if a meeting of our public spirited citizens could be held, and some separation in the direction we have indicated. It is a matter for all to see the progress of, and each one should be interested.

We have noticed elsewhere the opening of a Public Dining Saloon in Town. We trust it may not disappoint-ee, both in our hope and belief, if this bo d action on the part of the Whiskey Sellers does not result, and speedily, too, in the entire suppression of the Liquor Traffic in Colorado Springs.

Our Justices of the Peace are doing a business very lively.

Three car oads of Tourists came down from Denver on Wednesday last.

The "Union Store" on Pike's Peak Avenue, now has a mighty a ction.

The Brick Company hope to turn a hundred and sand brick during the coming week.

The frogs have begun to sing their sweet songs of love by the sides of the water-courses.

Mr. Partridge is now happy in the possession of one of the best sidewa ks and awnings in Town.

Messrs. Swisher, Holmes & Co. have now got their Concord Coaches into good trim.

Mr. E. A. McIntire of Colorado Springs on Tuesday last, for his new cities at Pewaukee, Wisconsin.

Governor Hunt has been paying a business visit to Colorado Springs during the week.

Mr. Peter Wirne, of Denver, is in Town, looking after some of his insurance business.

Los ar ants in and around Town are seeing a more than usua y lively time just now.

The swallows are coming, and so are the Tourists. The atter are making the Town begin to look quite live y.

The Colorado Springs Hotel is now under the charge of Mr. A. Sutton, who was formerly connected with it.

Some of our merchants com lain that goods consigned to them from Denver are a long time on the way.

We learn that the contracts have been let for the erection of several new buil ings, which are to be put up at once.

The Denver and Rio Grande Road is now doing a very large amount of business, both Passenger and Freight.

A large number of Emigrants bound for the San Juan country, have made their way through the Pass during the past week.

At a special meeting of the Town Trustees held last evening, Edward C. Sanford was appointed Town Constable, in place of C. P. Downing, resigned.

Senator Scott, of Pennsylvania, is making up a party to come to Colorado Springs. Senator Cameron will probably be one of the party.

The Beaton Aristocracy" is the title bestowed (somewhat appropriate y) on the Episcopalians of Colorado Springs. It is about time for their church to be built.

Messrs. White & Sweet are turning out a positive hundred dou les of lime per week from their Manitou Kiln. They are manufacturing a fine-class article.

Wednesday's train from Denver brought our sales is of mail matter to our post-office. Some of the people here must spend the greater part of their days in reading and writing letters.

Lawyers are now arriving in Colorado Springs at the rate of about one a week, and when any citizen concludes to make a small investment, the first thing he thinks of is to build a lawyer's office to rent.

Mr. Danforth who has been visiting his old home in Arkansas, returned to Colorado Springs this week. He is one of the promoters of the Tramway from here to Manitou and we believe that his arrival is the signal for commencing work upon it without delay.

When the Methodists build their church here, they are to so construct that it can be easily removed if the Town should not prove a failure. Even the Methodists are sometimes fearful of the result.

The return of pleasant weather has set the carpenters and painters to work in good earnest. New Buildings are going up, and several householders are putting on "additions."

Persons coming to Town, who propose to build, should consult our advertising columns, where they will find the notices of several contractors and builders.

Dr. Robert E. Lamborn, of the Pennsylvania Steel Works, and Vice-President of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, who was in Colorado Springs a short time ago, intends to pay another visit at an early date.

Mr. Summers has completed his plans for the Episcopal Church, and bids will shortly be received for its construction. Plans have been made for a Frame and a Stone Building. It is hoped that the Building Committee will be able, through the liberality of subscribers, to decide upon the latter.

Close upon the heels of two tons of Congressional Documents arrived at the post-office the other day for three of our citizens. As it, Congress then adjourned. Any three of our citizens who want similar favors should telegraph to Washington at once; for the days of the Fathers of the Republic are numbered.

The new road to Colorado City is being graded, and will be in good shape.

The Manitou Correspondent sev teen guests of the Manitou House on Wednesday last. "Good enough for one day," as one of our Denver contemporaries would exclaim.

Speaker Blaine, with his wife and son, have just visited the Territory, and passed on to California, etc., we are informed, returning shortly, and spending some time at Colorado Springs and Manitou.

Mr. Blair will shortly lay out a Manner of Villa Lots at Manitou, as several persons are waiting for purchase, as soon as the boundaries of the lots are properly defined.

Mr. Scherer has gone into the Soda Water Manufacturing and Bottling Business. He intends to make Nature's operations at Manitou, and give to the world a much superior article.

Mr. H. C. Harris came down from Anna, Park County, the other day. He reports the business prospects in that section; work is being resumed on the mines, and everybody is anticipating a favorable and prosperous season.

The following gentlemen will represent El Paso County in the Grand Jury of the United States Court, to open in Pueblo two weeks after next:—Mr. S. S. White, Mr. G. T. Crimmins, Colonel J. Scott Schuyler, Mr. Frank C. Chiles, and Mr. Anthony Bott.

We have heard that our Postmaster has ordered several additions of the new Postal Cards. Rumor has it that he is in for another increase of salary; but as these statements are only to be received as "hearsay," we give them for what they are worth.

Arrivals: Those who propose to spend a portion of the Summer here, as Samuel M. Pelton, Esq., son of ong President of the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Delaware Railway. Mr. Pelton proposes to bring his family with him.

Any of our readers, who know they have struck a Good Gold or Silver Mine, or a good Coal Deposit, should consult Mr. R. Ralston, whose card appears in our advertising columns. Mr. Ralston has had many years experience in such matters. He proposes to make Colorado his abode here.

Some of our Colorado Springs boys—big boys—went to Denver to see the circus. Perhaps it was one of them who told a Denver gentleman that he had been "a rinocephalus, a hoopeme peras, a giasticuttus and some monkeys and dogs."

We understand that Mr. J. E. Wood, of the firm of Adams, Wilson & Co., was the first person in Colorado Springs to receive one of the new Postal Cards in the ordinary course. Doubtless, he will have it framed and glazed to exhibit to "generations yet unborn."

The members of the Manitou Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F. of Colorado Springs, attended the Funeral on Wednesday, last, of Mr. Enos Sorrion, late of Seymour, Indiana, a member of the order, who died at Colorado City on Sunday morning last.

A Carriage Manufactory has been opened on Cucharas Street, by Mr. Henry Bittenstein, who intends to manufacture all kinds of Carriages, Buggies, and Wagons. We hope that the people of this section will "patronize Home Manufactures," or in so doing, serve themselves. We understand that Mr. Bittenstein expects to turn out as good work as can be obtained from the East.

As there have been several enquiries lately from persons wishing to drive southward as to the fares to El Paso and Tucson, we have taken the trouble to ascertain particulars. Fare from Colorado Springs to El Paso, 626 miles, $145.40; to Tucson, Arizona, 975 miles, $205.40. Baggage over 50 pounds is charged 2½ cents per pound, or $2 per 100 pounds.

Mr. Hair, who reached Colorado Springs last Saturday, is engaged in superintending the construction of a Carriage Road from the Garden of the Gods to Manitou. This, in connection with the road already running from Colorado Springs, across the Mesa, to Glen Eyrie, will give us a good road to Manitou, over a route that is not likely to be subject to washouts, or to be cut up by heavy freight traffic. It will also run through beautiful scenery to the greater part of the distance. The new road will, therefore, be a very desirable route from here to Manitou.

Mr. Isaacomber, who owns the Post-office building, proposes, we understand, to make considerable alterations and improvements in it, in order to facilitate the transaction of the Post-Office business, which has now grown to considerable dimensions. The Post-office is to be placed in the opposite, or in the north-east, corner of the building; the Box Delivery will be from the south side, and the General Delivery from the west side. An entrance will be made on the south side of the building—the present entrance on Pike's Peak Avenue. This will give a separate entrance to the Post-office and the whole arrangement will be a great improvement on the present one.

The editors of the Greeley Sun seem to take pleasure in perpetrating such pieces of—as they term them—wit as the following:—"Mrs. Wales—we mean to let her do so as much as she pleases, for she does it anyhow. But we don't want to be quizzed again by getting a false representation. We don't want to be treated to any more cows with short tails, and to scarcely as noteworthy of comment as the following."

Numerous enquiries are being made by way of amusement and society, now-a-days, regarding these attractions. It was found, their exact location, and the best method of reaching them. We are authorized to state that persons having houses or Rooms to rent, or having accommodation for Boarders, will leave particulars as to situation, terms, etc., at the Colony Office, the same will be kept for reference.

Prospecting around Pikes Peak,—which has brought Immigrants to Colorado,—seems to be coming again into vogue. During the past week nearly a score of new workers in the fine arts were started out, with picks and hammers in search of fortune. Referring to a paragraph in our last issue about the mines at the head of Cheyenne and Bear Creeks, a correspondent, "C. D.," writes as follows: "Seeing a notice in your last issue in regard to the mines at the head of Cheyenne and Bear Creeks, and being a member of the Stewart Mining Company, I thought a word or two from me on the true state of affairs. Prospecting in the neighborhood of Cheyenne is still going on, with hopes as sanguine as ever. We hope, therefore, that the citizens of Colorado Springs will not be discouraged, while those of Colorado City are so confident of success. We only ask that Colorado Springs may be fairly represented. As to what the prospects are,—whether they be good or bad—time only will tell. So we await further events. More anon."

A Public Bar has been opened at the back of the Bijou Bar in the Antelope House. We hope that, when the day of reckoning comes in this matter, those who are responsible for such open defiance of law will not try to shirk their responsibility. The man who sells the liquor is, of course, the manifest offender, but there are others who are participators with him. We call attention to this now, in order that hereafter there may be clear understanding about the matter.

After the election of Town Trustees, the expression of the public opinion on which was then expected, those who have control of the Antelope House secured the lessee of the Bijou Bar to discontinue the sale of Intoxicating Liquors on the premises. The action they did so was taken on the ground that they were in a position to allow or to disallow such sale. That action they now allow it to proceed in seems to us, and we hope, as we have said, that they will not try hereafter to sell the same on other grounds.

FAREWELL TO CAPT. SCHUYLER.

A number of the friends of Captain Edward Schuyler met him at their guest, to a Supper at the "De monico," Pike's Peak Avenue, on Thursday evening last, previous to his departure for California.

After justice had been done to the Supper, Wm. P. Nelson, Esq., was voted to the chair, and a number of toasts appropriate to the occasion were given and responded to.

Mr. R. Nelson Clark proposed the health of the guest of the evening. As Captain Schuyler was an engineer of different stamp from his own, he said he would leave it to others to speak of his skill and success, and would confine himself to asking the company to join him in drinking to him as a man and a friend. He had known Captain Schuyler only for as many months as probably most of them had or years, but in those months, as an adviser in office and a companion in the hours, Captain Schuyler had so won his esteem and affection that there was not a heavier heart present there than his own. It was trying, however, that they, living on the back bone of the Continent, should have such inducements to be what we are of the Queen City of the West, as earlier ones bound them to their homes in the East. He had no fear that the bond would snap by being stretched so many hundred miles; in the technical language of their profession, the equivalents of his absence could only be expressed by the cypher of infinity; it would be as strong as ever here, and would, therefore, draw them, together again. He could not, he asked the company to join him in an Engineer's sentiment, which he knew the guest would recall in fact and action: "Friend, may the course of your life be long and straight! may the curves be few and symmetrical! may you succeed, grade, but not overcome it; down grade, never!"

Captain Schuyler, in responding, said he was unable to express how deeply his expressions of esteem and regard affected him. He was, however, glad to say that most of them in private, few thoroughly knew the peculiarities of his character, that was, therefore, the less necessary for him to do so on that occasion. He closed with much regret, but hope to take with him their best wishes and good wishes.

Mr. Gerald Geoffrey proposed "The Denver and Rio Grande Railway," with which, he said, Captain Schuyler had been so intimately and honorably connected, and of the success of which he had been so great a contributor. The toast was responded to by Mr. Jackson, acting Vice-President of the Road.

Mr. Jackson, in speaking, referred to the close connection of the guest of the evening with the enterprise, and to the great success of the business relations that existed between him and the Company. Schuyler came down over two years, giving a list of locomotives of the most approved pattern, and in 28 days from the time of purchasing these views of what was required for carrying on the work. Since becoming the many friends he has made here will be glad to hear that he has been appointed Chief Engineer of the Kansas Pacific Railway, which position he will assume on the 1st of June next. Mr. Jackson then proposed the health of Captain Schuyler, which was drunk with three times three and a tiger.

Captain Schuyler, in responding, said that he had been taken by surprise, and was not prepared to make a speech. He had been in the habit of doing his duty as he saw it, and had endeavored to do so in the present instance. He had been treated with great kindness by the Directors of the Company, and by the officials of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway Company, as well as with the Denver and Rio Grande Railway Company, for the Railway Company was the basis of the Company. He had been connected with the Railway Company from its first, and when those who were interested in the undertaking first came to this country to ascertain whether here was the place to build railways, whether here was the place for money to be invested, whether here was the place where the younger members could make reputation as well as fortune, Capt. Schuyler was one whose judgment had to be mainly depended upon, founded, as it was, on the knowledge acquired in the surveys for the Kansas Pacific and of the country to the south. He had contributed more to the success of the undertaking than their guests had, by his sagacity, judgment, enterprize, and skill. For a time he was absent in Europe, whither he went to strengthen the hands of those who were seeking to negotiate the bonds, which he did by the information that he conveyed as, perhaps, no one else could have done. Now, he felt, another field called for his services. This had been a success; Colorado Springs had been built, Pueblo had been built, the Road had been opened, Denver had grown from a city of 2,000 to a city of 30,000, since he settled in the Territory, and now he felt that the country was going to be developed for him, so he was going to California. He could only express that he had served them here as faithfully, as successfully, as he had done here, then he might certainly come back to them in a year or so, and carry on the work southward.

Mr. Jackson proposed "The Engineer Corps of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway."

Mr. Mersereau responded, and expressed his regret at parting with his old friend, Captain Schuyler. He said that the Narrow Gauge, when Captain Schuyler identified himself with it, was only a theory; now it was a success of which he might well be proud. No one was better fitted to demonstrate its advantages to the California slope than Captain Schuyler, for he had been identified with it more closely than any other Engineer in the United States.

A number of other toasts followed, including "The Officers of the Railway," responded to by Major Wagner; "Mr. McMurtrie," (Captain Schuyler's successor); "The Treasurer's Department," responded to by Mr. Weitbrecht; "The Auditor's Department," responded to by Mr. Gilpin; "The Central Colorado Improvement Company," responded to by Captain DeCourcey, etc.

A number of songs were sung by Mr. W. P. Gilpin, Mr. Weitbrecht and others; and "Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

Captain Schuyler took leave of his Colorado Springs friends on Friday, when he left for Denver. He will start for San Francisco on Monday.

TERRITORIAL GLEANINGS.

The school board of Canon City have determined to build a six thousand dollar school-house.

A general convention of persons interested in irrigation will be held in Denver on the 11th of June, and will continue for two days. It is called by Gen. Chase, Jefferson County, who is President of the Farmers' Union.

The Boulder News says: "From many different parts of the county we hear that horse breeders are losing many of their young colts. It is supposed to be owing to the epizootic which raged among the horses last winter. In some instances the colts are born with every symptom of the disease—coughing, and running at the nose—and dying when a few days old.

The People says that the homestead and pre-emption entries of land in southern counties have been greater during the past month than any corresponding period in the history of the section. Entries have been made from Sargent, on the east boundary of the Territory, to the Wet Mountain on the west, and from the Divide, on the north, to the Ra on Range on the south. The southern counties embrace the richest agricultural and grazing lands south of the Divide.

Work upon smelting works will commence in Boulder next week.

Governor Gilpin is expected in Denver in a short time.

The Colorado Central Railroad proposes to have a telegraph line built to Boulder inside of thirty days.

A triweekly stage line, for passengers and express freight, has been established between Boulder and Carbonate, leaving Boulder Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

A special correspondent of the Kansas Cattle Trail says: "My observations of Colorado and me on the cattle on that there is danger of the stock business being overdone—putting more cattle on the range than can be plenty of good grass. The soil is very sandy, and the grass of slow growth and nutritious. During a favorable season the grass is quite nutritious, and where cattle were not very numerous, appears to keep. There is a large amount of cattle in Southern Colorado, but they are mostly stock cattle, and only a small portion will be upon the market this year. From the number of young calves and calves, we can look to a large country with confidence for a large supply in future years."

A new Colony enterprise has been set on foot in the San Luis Valley. The town is to be known as "Christobel," the site chosen being Kelley's ranch on Christobel Creek, in Saguache County.

The American Tea Company of New York, have shipped machinery, etc., to Denver, preparatory to opening a large Branch Establishment there.

The following letter from Brigadier General Pope to Governor Elbert concerning the recent order for the removal of miners from the San Juan country, explains itself, and will be received with satisfaction by all the citizens of the Territory.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE MISSOURI,
FT. LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS,
May 18, 1873.

To the Governor of Colorado, Denver, C. T.:

SIR:—Your letter of the 8th instant was received on my return here day before yesterday.

I will take immedia e steps to post a company of cavalry at River Bend, and have written to have a company of cavalry sent from Fort McPherson or Fort D. A. Russell, (Cheyenne) to the mouth of Bear Creek.

Incursions from the north side of the Union Pacific Railroad across into Colorado, I do not apprehend any serious disturbances anywhere in the Territory.

The order for the removal of the miners from a portion of the Ute Territory, which was made by the War Department on request of the Secretary of the Interior, and sent here for execution, has been suspended for the present by the President, and until further instructions from the same authority, no action will be taken to carry out the order.

I am, Sir, very respectfully your obedient servant,

JOHN POPE,
Brig. Major Gen. U. S. A., commanding.

The Greeley Tribune says: Mrs. Harriet M. Atkinson has with her own hands planted over 1,300 forest trees, and upwards of 90 apple trees, also several pounds of forest tree seed, and half a barrel of black walnuts. The trees planted late mostly maple, ash and elm, and they are doing well. Before coming to Greeley she would never have dreamed of performing such a task.

The News says: We are pleased to learn that the fine building stone in the neighborhood of Larapsur, on the line of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, is to be utilized by builders in this city. Messrs. Jones & Co., of Larapsur, have made arrangements for shipping this stone to the city, and will soon open a yard here, where they will keep it on hand. This stone is very hard, some of it being nearly as fine as marble. There is a large amount of the building stone within a short distance of Denver, and we hope to see more of it used in our business blocks hereafter, of which Messrs. Jones & Co. will no doubt contribute a large proportion.

A move is on foot in Pueblo to organize a military company.

Wool shipments from Pueblo are becoming large enough to attract attention.

The Pueblo strawberries are luxuriating in straw berries from California, and mountain trout from the spar kling streams of Colorado.

Sheriff Brown, of Central, was rattling some keys in his pocket, on Monday night, when a small derringer which he carried was exploded. The ba entered his thigh and ranged downward to the knee.

A conductor on the Kansas Pacific railroad, telegraphed from Carson Station recently: "Train overdue fifteen minutes on account of a lady. Don't know whether it is a boy or a girl."—Tribune.

The Transcript says that new side tracks are being put in at the depot at Golden, and every preparation made to handle freight promptly and carefully. Twenty trains per day now arrive and start from that point, which is some improvement as compared with the solitary stage that used to roll in once a day in '70.

Mr. Hunt, of Greeley, has planted twelve miles of willows round his farm.

The Pueblo Chieftain says it has reliable information from a private source, which indicates that work on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway will be resumed at an early day, and that it will be pushed forward without delay until Pueblo is reached.

Wolfe Hall, Garvis Hall, and St. Mary's Academy are all in a very flourishing condition.

It is stated that more emigrants from Europe have arrived in New York since the Atlantic disaster than during any month previous to it, and that a fair share of them will seek Colorado as their locating point.

A twenty-seven pound catfish stopped the wheels of the Pueblo flouring mills on Saturday last.

A rich strike has recently been made on the Senator lode, in Starr district, Silver mining district, Southern Colorado.

The Georgetown Miner chronicles the sale, for a very large but unstated sum, of the Mammoth lode, a silver property near that place, of assured value.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Louis Cox, Lake street, Denver, has just received from St. Joseph, a number of car loads of furniture of all description, from a Kitchen to a Rosewood Parlor Set, and is selling as low as ever. The way to be convinced is to call and see for yourself.

Those expecting to put up Store Buildings in Colorado Springs and vicinity, would do well to call upon Messrs. Trotscher & Co., Denver. They have put up many handsome buildings in Denver and all parts of the Territory, and they need no better recommendation in Denver than the new Second House on Arapahoe street, and the Methodist Church, also the handsome monuments in the cemeteries of Denver.

Messrs. Grannis & Stratton have built a fine large room for Pike's Peak Avenue, where they propose to do a general Carpenter Business, Contracting and Building. They both have been here for some time and deserve the patronage of the public.

Messrs. A. J. Woodside & Co., Mariner street, Denver, are daily receiving and placing upon their shelves new Boots and Shoes for male and female. Latest styles by express from New York City.

In another column will be found an advertisement of Messrs. J. B. Beaumont & Co., successors to Messrs. Weir, Piper & Co., Lumber Dealers.

Just received, direct from manufacturers, the largest quantity of Choice Cigars and Tobacco ever brought to Colorado Territory, at Dittmidge's.

Cheaper than the cheapest, Segars from 5 cents to 50, at Dittmidge's.

Pure Havanas 20 cents, at Dittmidge's.

Havana filling 15 cents, at Dittmidge's.

Smokers and Chewers call at Dittmidge's.

Lovers of the weed call at Dittmidge's.

Finest assortment of Cigars in the United States at Dittmidge's.

$500 REWARD.

LAND NOTICE.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
PUEBLO, COL., May 10, 1873.

To William York, and all others whom it may concern:

You are hereby notified that Richard B. Townsend has made application to this office to enter the south half of south-west quarter and north-west quarter of south-west quarter of section 33, and the north-east quarter of south-east quarter of section 32, township 2, south of range 63 West, under the provisions of the act of September 4, 1841, a part of which tract of land it appears by our records you have claimed under said act. At the request of the said Richard B. Townsend, we have appointed Monday, the 23d day of June, 1873, at 10 o'clock A. M., for a hearing of the matter before the Register and Receiver of this office, at which time and place parties in interest may appear and offer testimony in support of their respective claims.

IRVING HOWBERT, Register.
CHARLES A. COOK, Receiver.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, Godlip Stumpp and Lewis Tucker, of the County of El Paso and Territory of Colorado, on the twelfth day of April, A. D., 1873, by a certain indenture of mortgage of that date, recorded in book A, page 350 of the records of El Paso county, and Territory of Colorado, did convey to the undersigned, as mortgagees, the following described goods and chattels, to wit:

[illegible] furniture, including all of the same then in possession of the mortgagors and used in the Del Norte House, in the Town of Colorado Springs, County and Territory before named, to secure the payment of a certain promissory note, payable to the order of the Sloan Saw Mill and Lumber Company, for two hundred and thirteen dollars and seventy-two cents ($213 72), due and payable one the twelfth, A. D., 1873, and whereas, by the terms and conditions of said mortgage, if the said goods and chattels, or any part thereof, shall be attached or claimed by any other person or persons, at any time before payment, or if the said mortgagors shall attempt to sell or remove said goods without the authority or permission of the said mortgagees in writing expressed, then it shall and may be lawful for the said mortgagees or assigns to take immediate and full possession of the whole of said goods and chattels to their own use and sell the same for the best price that can be obtained, and out of the money arising therefrom to pay said note and all charges, rendering the same, and paying the surplus, if any, to the said mortgagors, and, whereas, the terms and conditions of the above named mortgage have been violated by the said mortgagors by offering for sale and selling the said goods and chattels named and described in said mortgage, the undersigned, as mortgagees, will, by virtue of the power and authority vested in them by said mortgage, on Saturday, the thirty-first day of May, A. D. 1873, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Del Norte House, on Cascade Avenue, in the town of Colorado Springs, El Paso county and Territory of Colorado, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash the above described goods and chattels.

ROUND THE WORLD, WAGS.

The girl students at Antioch College, Ohio, have formed a baseball club.

Within the last six months ten new names have been added to the list of lady preachers.

Toasts are now expressed, in one day, between the city of Mexico and Vera Cruz.

A Spanish Catholic temperance movement is projected in Cadiz, and Archbishop Manning lately presided in a meeting for its promotion.

Modern brides now wear two veils—one of long tulle falling down the back, and a shorter one, cut pointed, worn over the face.

The snow-ball veil, which the ladies are now wearing, is quite becoming. It is of black lace, dotted with white.

The widow of the late Adjutant General Nichols has been appointed Postmistress at Leavenworth, Kansas.

The Rev. Mr. May, of Des Moines, Iowa, has a wife who is a lady-lawyer, and a daughter who is studying law.

Mrs. E. S. Tupper, the great letter-queen, is obliged to return money-orders every day for fees, which she is at present unable to fill.

The storm was so violent at Northampton, Mass., on the first Sunday, that no services were held, allowing the first time in sixty years in which the bell has been silent on that day.

The late George Peabody and the late Bishop Levi Silliman, of Ohio, were intimate friends, and the latter was one of the trustees of the Peabody Fund in this country.

A Chinese junk was recently seized at Hong Kong, having on board some stolen telegraphic instruments supposed to be a portion of the Great Northern line.

A young lady recently visited Austin, crumbling ruins for a wholesale grocery establishment. "Davenport, Iowa," says an exchange. It is said, however, that the young lady is remarkably successful as a commercial traveler.

Nine children-in-all, it appears, are not to be only boys who are addicted to "ways that are dark." A Spanish Consul in Paris has just been detected in some very serious defalcations, and has been sent to Spain for trial.

The present Virginia Assembly gave a Sunday-school excursion to each Sunday school scholar, 250 in all, has granted them and returned five tickets, which were sold for $20, and given to the orphans. A good idea.

Some of the feminine beauty-mongers of New York have pronounced for a simpler, more economical and less variegated style of dress, but still practice what they preach. The co-operation of all sensible members of their sex is urgently to be desired in this movement in favor of natural female attire.

A Governess-in-London was recently sentenced to a week's imprisonment at hard labor for wounding a young man who had insulted her. The servants at Windsor and other large cities were thus instructed with the nature of the attacks, and it is probable that there would be fewer murders.

Among the deaths recently announced in the daily papers is that of Captain Amnesty, of the 5th regiment. The directs that his beautiful yacht, valued at £1,500, shall be sold, and the money thus realized be devoted to the purchase of a steam fire engine for the Newfoundland dog.

Some young lady recently entertained the company at a dinner party by exhibiting a number of articles of furniture and dress which she had manufactured with this view to the Paris Exhibition. But though the Emperor will allow the exclusive right of the invention to the inventor, the speculation fails to pay on account of the extraordinary freight charges, and the poor girl is compelled to abandon the enterprise.

A Chicago paper says that a person named Brown has formerly occupied by Lincoln, has found in a rubbish heap in the cellar a box of money, and this is thought to be the money that the Knight of Russia presented to Lincoln in 1845, and that he lost at card time. It was supposed to have been stolen.

A Virginia horse recently ran off with the animal in question, what was recovered from a spectator, distance and result not stated. Throughout two weeks the animal was used, to the satisfaction, his appearance being entirely changed, and now he refuses to be interested to know which of the men is to be the other.

A County Jail in Virginia is to charge out at Fort Madison, Iowa, in an action for $50,000 damages, brought by a lady for being forcibly ejected from church, because she stopped her ears with her fingers during the prayer of a party personally obnoxious to her, and who had been instrumental in the excommunication of her husband from church membership.

The Russian papers are informed that the Empress of Germany, during her sojourn at Nice, Italy, has so impressed the inhabitants of the place, that their admiration knows no bounds. To give expression to the popular feeling and to attest the admiration felt for that excellent lady, the municipality is said to have resolved to call a street of the town, which is formerly known as the Corso, after Tasso, after the Empress' name.

Passing to an expression of a desire a few days ago by a New Castle man, play for celebrated Mary Wardles, an Iowa presented with a necklace at Wells's operahouse. After the performance, Mrs. Ingram and two friends made their appearance, but not the present, though a wait of several minutes had been made. The play proceeded, and between the second and third acts, the present made its appearance, when the curtain, dressing of in the music they were playing, struck up "Hail to the Chief." Regarding this as an unwarrantable interruption of the performance, Mrs. Chieftain became indignant and peremptorily demanded that the orchestra stop its noise, and that the play proceed. Her order was disregarded, to the great surprise of the President's Patterers.

A charity fair was gotten up last month at the new Opera House, Paris, for the benefit of the orphans left by the late Franco German war. The most aristocratic ladies of the capital officiated on that occasion as saleswomen, and the attendance was correspondingly large. Madame Thiers sold straw berries at five francs each, and photographs of her husband at the same price. Mme. Villemessant, the proprietor of the Figaro, stepped up to her stall, "a piece of news," and was gratified with a few lines which cost him 1,000 francs. Among the other saleswomen were the Princess Metternich, Madame Bazaine, the Duchess of Beauvau, the Duchesse de Sesta, Madame McMahon, and other leaders of Parisian society. The sum realized by the fair, which continued for two nights, was a very handsome one.

A rather sensational marriage case is reported from Cassel. Two German officers, one of them a Count, married a poor girl, for her own sake, and not for the sake of her fortune. The Count's determination met with considerable opposition from his friends, who had designs upon his wealth. The girl succeeded, and her betrothal was, according to custom, announced in the newspapers. The Count, with a refined delicacy, then informed the man to whom he had formerly been anxious to win a bet, that it was impossible for him to contract the contract of a gamester. It was an excellent joke, but as so often happens, it was spoiled at last. The story came to the knowledge of the Emperor William, and it may be in error that his Majesty did not appreciate its humor, for both officers have been placed under arrest, and they are to be tried by court-martial.

GOSSIP.

Co-one T. D. Gra , of the President's family, recently lectured in Washington.

"Sermonette" is the family title given to the brief discourses of High Church rectors to their congregations in England.

It is rumored that the Rev. Dr. Chapin contemplates retiring, within a year or two, from active professional labors.

Charles Darwin, on account of his recent advance to the chimpanzee species, is known in Hong and as the missing link.

President Grant, it is asserted, is certain to become one of the richest men in Missouri, owing to the extraordinary rise in his real estate in St. Louis.

It is said that the son of Baron Anselm de Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the family, has married a Christian woman, and has abjured his religion. His wife is the daughter of the Austrian Archduke Wagner.

On the fourth of July next, Miss Nellie Grant will celebrate her eighteenth birthday. The arrangements are not decided, but will be as soon as the New York Sun reporter gets a chance to interview the African Cabinet.

Mark Twain, a few months after his first baby was born, was holding it on his knee. His wife said, "Now confess, Samuel, that you love the child." "I can't conscientiously reject the humanist," "but am willing to submit—respect the little thing on its father's account."

Benjamin F. Murphy, a young Jack Driver, has secured the appointment to a West Point cadetship from Chicago, after he has graduated, and, though one other candidate passed an equally good examination, Murphy's superior physique got him the appointment.

A Nashville lady has been so captivated by the profession of a lecturer since Olive Logan's visit to that city, that she declares she will adopt it. Her husband is somewhat surprised at this, as it is his impression that she has been in the lecture field since the day of their marriage.

When the Duke of Edinburgh, the daughter of the Czar are married, they are to live in a year, at least, in Russia, and have one of the new houses on the quay in front of Admiralty at St. Petersburg. The bride's fortune is to be 1,000,000 roubles.

Gen. Canby used to be as famous for having a cigar in his mouth as Grant, but, unlike the President, he rarely smokes, seeming, instead, to chew the cigar in his mouth, and chewing it mechanically to destroy it, when another would as mechanically take its place.

The edifice in which Anderson was born was pulled down a few days since. It was a log cabin, and the people forced to it to obtain relics. Some took a nail, some a piece of timber, while the emotions of others could be stilled with nothing less than a stone.

A gentleman who recently had the pleasure of meeting Tennyson, at his new home, in company with a few right people, and hearing him read, describes his manner and style of reading as quiet and gentlemanly, with a slight cast of what looks like indolence, but, I suspect, at first, a stiffness and reserve that repels strangers.

Mrs. Florence Knox has been engaged to sing in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, at a salary of $2,500 a year. She is from Michigan. This is the church in which the preaching and psalmody are upon a particularly large scale, and where they

The Denver Tribune says: "A Lawrence street man took his wife $5 a week pin-money, with the understanding that she should forfeit ten cents for each absent button, and the same amount for each cup of poor coffee. This arrangement has been going on for two years, and the day has not yet come when the coupon is worth ten cents."

When about mid-ocean, a curious incident occurred on board the United States Atlantic. The steerage passengers say, that at about that point on the voyage two or three of the passengers declared, as if gifted with the spirit of prophecy, that the ship and all on board would be lost. They set to packing their carpet bags and went on deck to watch for a chance passing vessel, saying that they were going to leave her, as they were sure she was doomed to destruction. The captain then interviewed, and asked them up as gentlemen, and when the prediction they had made in their supposed insanity received its fearful fulfilment, they, it is said, perished in confinement.

INFORMATION FOR STRANGERS.

COLORADO.

To borrow the expression of a well-known writer, the Territory of Colorado straddles the Rocky Mountains like a saddle—a part of it being on their eastern flank, a part on their western flank, and a part of it being taken up by the mountains themselves. It lies between the 37th and 41st parallels of north latitude, and the 102nd and 109th meridians of west longitude, being bounded on the north by Wyoming and Nebraska, and on the east by Nebraska and Kansas, and on the south by New Mexico, and on the west by Utah. The area embraced forms nearly a square, containing about 104,475 square miles, or 67,420,000 acres—a greater extent of country than all of Great Britain, with a colony or two included, and quite as large as New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, with New Jersey thrown in for good measure.

For many reasons Colorado is one of the most remarkable sections of country on the face of the earth.

Though not geographically, it is, really, the centre of the North American Continent. Up to its giant peaks, there is a gradual slope on every side, from the Atlantic on the east, the Pacific on the west, the Gulf of Mexico on the south, and the confines of the Polar Sea on the north. The dwellers on its "plains" or lower lands, live, on the average, about a mile above the level of the sea; while those who live in its "mountain towns," are lifted still nearer heaven.

Its scenery is magnificently grand. Its climate is equally cheering and healthful. The clear air and the bright sunshine, which continually characterize it, act like a charm upon the system, invigorating the bodily powers and inducing constant "good spirits." The dryness and purity of the atmosphere renders it especially suitable for such as are of consumptive or asthmatic tendencies, or suffer from any affection of the throat or lungs; such—unless the disease has obtained too firm a grip—are a most certain to regain health and strength.

The resources of the country are almost limitless and innumerable.

Its mountains are seamed and streaked with precious wealth of all kinds—gold and silver, copper and coal, iron and iron.

Cradled in their brawny arms and lying at their outspread feet, are peaceful valleys, wherein the farmer raises crops of rich abundance. Owing to the small rainfall, irrigation is necessary to the cultivation of the soil; but this, when understood, is comparatively little labor, and far more than compensates for by the great yield which is obtained.

Eastward from the mountains, the "great plains" stretch in almost boundless extent, covered with rich grasses, which render them the best pastures in the world. Sheep and cattle thrive upon them with but little care, and with few exceptions, through the winter as well as the summer. During the fall, the dryness of the atmosphere cures the grasses, leaving up in them all the nutritious qualities and leaving them standing upon the ground as natural hay—a winter stock of feed, needing no preparation and no housing.

The foothills are covered with timber, and contain almost every variety of building stone. Some of the rivers afford water-power of the finest character.

In short, Colorado offers all the natural resources necessary for carrying on the three great productive industries—Mining, Agriculture, and Manufactures—and all the attractions of Scenery and Climate calculated to make it a healthful and delightful home.

EL PASO COUNTY.

El Paso County is one of the central counties of the Territory and embraces a fair share of its peculiar physical characteristics—mountain, valley and plain. Along its northern border stretches the Great Colorado "Divide," a pine-covered mountain spur, which takes its name from the fact that it separates the sections of country or rivers to the east rivers of the Territory, the Platte on the north and the Arkansas on the south. From the "Divide" the country has a continual slope southward, its southern boundary being eighteen miles north of the Arkansas, the distance from north to south being about forty-two miles. This southward slope—expanding the whole of the county, like a garden walk, to the full enough to give a marked effect upon its climatic characteristics. The distance from the eastern boundary of the county to the foot of the mountains, is about forty miles, near enough that the county contains about thirty miles of mountainous country, making the total width about seventy miles. The area includes about 1,675,000 acres, of which upwards of 940,000 acres has been "entered."

Though Pike's Peak—the great focal point of the gold excitement which first brought Colorado into notice—is situated in this county, there are few, if any, known valuable deposits of the precious metals in the El Paso county has no place amongst the mining counties of the Territory. It has, however, the advantage of a market in the mining districts to the west, which are reached by the Ute Pass. These mining districts are rapidly growing into great importance, being amongst the richest in the Territory, and will cause a large demand for agricultural and other products.

Most of the agricultural land which can be watered directly—that is, by ditches taken out of the creeks—is already taken up, and such land is now worth from $10 to $20 per acre. Experiments, however, will shortly be made in the matter of artesian wells, and if they prove successful, thousands of acres of the most tempting land—still open for pre-emption—will be made available for irrigation and cultivation. Scattered through the mountains are numerous small patches, or "parks," on which rains and vegetables, of the first quality, can be raised to even greater advantage than in the lower valleys.

In like manner, most of the land, available for stock ranges, having water upon it, has been taken up, and ranches command from $500 to $3,000. There can be no doubt, however, that almost anywhere on the plain, wells could be sunk at a small expense, from which water could be drawn by wind-mills or other means. Necessity has not yet driven the people to invention, but will do so ere long, as every succeeding year makes more and more manifest the fact that that country which has been regarded as a value less in reality of the most valuable character, when a little trouble is taken to aid Nature by the contrivances of art.

The progress of the Stock Interests of the county may be gathered from the following figures taken from the Assessor's reports for 1871 and 1872: In the former year there were 779 horses, 190 mules, 3,734 oxen, 2,327 cows, 3,032 sheep, and 336 swine. In 1872, there were 960 horses, 76 mules, 6,986 cows, 2,145 oxen, 6,336 calves, 50,254 sheep, and 213 swine. Last year, the wool crop of the county amounted to 174,822 pounds.

The Lumber Trade is an important part of the business of the county, there being fourteen mills constantly engaged in it, and more timber-land in El Paso county than in any other county in the Territory.

COLORADO SPRINGS.

The town of Colorado Springs is situated, in the centre of El Paso county, at a point where the Fountaine qui Bouit creek unites with the Fontaine qui Bouit, and where the Ute Pass opens upon the plains.

It is a principal station on the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, seventy-six miles south of Denver, the metropolis of the Territory, and forty-two miles north of Pueblo.

The town takes its name from numerous valuable mineral springs in the immediate neighborhood. The most important of these are grouped together about five miles to the west, in a beautiful glen, to which has been given the name of Manitou. These are the celebrated "Boiling Springs," which, years ago, were made known to the world by Fremont, Ruxton, and other writers. Formerly they were visited on account of their medicinal virtues by the native tribes of Indians, who regarded them as supernatural phenomena caused by the direct action of the Great Spirit. In latter times, notwithstanding the difficulty of access to them, their fame has attracted large numbers of invalids anxious to avail themselves of the healing waters. During last year, large sums of money have been expended in laying out and adorning the ground in the neighborhood; a handsome, commodious, and comfortable hotel has been built, bath-houses have been fitted up, and many other conveniences provided. Now that these famous springs are so easily accessible, and that every provision has been made for the comfort of visitors, there can be no doubt that a few years will suffice to make them as attractive a point as is Saratoga in the East. Thousands will throng to them every year, and many will take up permanent abodes around them. The springs are seven in number, and are useful both for drinking and bathing purposes, being highly beneficial in rheumatism skin diseases, general debility, and numerous other ailments which we need not catalogue.

In addition to these wonderful springs, some of the most remarkable and magnificent scenery on the American Continent is in proximity to the town.

Directly in front is Pike's Peak, the most celebrated of the Rocky Mountains, rising to a height of upwards of 14,000 feet above sea level, its head covered with snow all the year. Right and left of the Peak is a long range of "Foot-hills" lofty mountains here would be eminent in any other land, "infinitely diversified, with a variety of hue and outline, with rocky crags and tumbled boulders and smooth slopes, with constant play of light and shade, with contrasts of rich and sombre colors, with streaks of snow and dark groves of pine"—the whole forming a panorama of exceeding beauty, of which the eye never tires.

Three miles from town is the wonderful and famous "Garden of the Gods," in which huge rocks, hundreds of feet high, and of the most fantastic shapes, and gorgeous colors, form a scene which excites the wonder of all who behold it. Close to the Garden is "Glen Eyrie," with its Queen's Canon, equally wonderful and beautiful. Five miles to the southwest of the town is "Cheyenne Canon," a magnificent gorge, whose stupendous walls of rock and beautiful waterfalls give it an almost unrivaled grandeur. Twelve miles north is "Monument Park," studded with groups of lofty columns of sandstone, which look like obelisks of some by-gone race of giants. Immediately beyond Manitou are the Rainbow Glen, the Cascade and Falls of the Fountain, and the Ute Pass, indeed, in all directions, are scenes of grandeur and of beauty. "The advantage of this point," says a recent writer, "is that it lets you at once in the heart of the mountains."

The Springs and the Scenery combined are distinct, of themselves, to build up a town of considerable size and importance. Here will be a place of resort—of almost unequaled attractions—known the world over. Last year brought thousands of visitors, from almost every State in the Union, and from foreign lands, and each succeeding season will bring an increasing throng, whilst many who are in search of health, have already chosen it as their permanent home, and many more will settle here in order to secure to it the same inestimable boon.

Everything possible is being done to heighten the attractive character of a spot on which Nature has bestowed so many advantages. It is intended to make Colorado Springs not only famous as a Sanitarium, but also as an educational centre, and a home of refined society. Large reservations have been made for schools and kindred institutions, and the Town, although still in its infancy, already numbers on the erection of a costly school-house. Wide streets and avenues and spacious squares have been laid out, and thousands of trees have been planted.

Ample funds will accumulate to carry on the work of beautifying the town, of erecting public buildings, and of constructing necessary public works. The town is a Colony Town, and the whole of the profits derived from the sale of the Colony Lots and Lands are appropriated to public improvements. The land having been bought in large parcels at low rates, and being sold to colonists in small lots, at advanced figures, many thousands of dollars will thus be devoted to the purposes named.

Persons may become colonists by purchasing certificates of membership, which are of four grades, according to the privileges conveyed: $50, $75; $150, $200. A certificate entitles a member to locate certain city and farm. There are of three denominations: "Business Lots," 25 feet by 100 feet, ranging in prices from $100 to $250; "Residence Lots," 50 feet by 190 feet, and 100 feet by 190 feet, ranging in prices from $50 to $150; "Outlying Tracts," of the following sizes and prices: One-acre tracts, $150; 5 acre tracts, $350; ten-acre tracts, $50 to $90 an acre; twenty-acre tracts, $60 to $40 an acre; forty-acre tracts, $15 to $20. A $50 certificate entitles its holder to locate a $50 residence lot; a $75 certificate, any residence or irrespective of price; a $150 certificate, to locate a business and residence lot, or a business lot and cultivating tract, or a lands located does not exceed $300, a $200 certificate is to locate similar lots as the previous, but irrespective for the lots located, and the balance of the value of the lots exceeds that of the certificate, can be paid any time within twelve months of the location of the first occasion, if more than one is made upon the same certificate. Members may take out as many certificates as they please, but are bound to make one improvement that is to put to a house, or make some equivalent expenditure, for each certificate, within four months of making the first location upon it. Upon this being done, and payment of the lots completed, deeds are given conveying full title, with one exception however—that no intoxicating liquors shall ever be sold on such lots in any premises having the character of a place of public resort; breach of this condition involves forfeiture of the property.

The lands about the Town, of which the Company possess about 10,000 acres, are excellent agricultural lands. A great portion is almost as flat as a table, with an excellent soil, so that it can be irrigated with the utmost facility. Irrigating canals have been constructed, and large reservoirs for the purpose of storing water as an insurance against exceptionally dry seasons. The climate and the soil are especially suitable for the cultivation of small fruits, and for these a ready market will be found, in addition to the supply required by the Town, and by the mines not far away, a company has been formed for the purpose of establishing a Canning Factory in the Town so soon as the quantity of fruit grown shall render this some consummation.

The progress already made by the Town, has been astonishingly rapid. Up to date—that is, little more than eighteen months from the commencement of the enterprise—there have been 443 certificates of membership taken out, on most of which two locations have been made. The population, according to the nearest estimate we can arrive at, is between fifteen and eighteen hundred. The various institutions necessary to a well-ordered community, have been quickly put into working order. There are two churches built, one in course of erection, and another very shortly to be commenced; two public schools, a hotel, a newspaper, a post-office, a telegraph office, a bank, three or four large hotels, numerous boarding houses, stores of all kinds, well stocked—where the luxuries as well as the necessaries of life can be obtained—livery stables, etc. The town has been organized with trustees and other officers, and several companies have been formed for the prosecution of important commercial undertakings—including a steam saw-mill, an active association, brick-manufacture, coal-mining, etc. In short, the town has started off in the heart of the mountains.

To such, therefore, as are seeking new homes, Colorado Springs offers its advantages for your best consideration.
